Known as the nation's leading "High Style, Low Cost Decorating Guru," Frank Fontana is the host and lead designer for one of HGTV's longest running and top rated design shows, "Design on a Dime." In addition, Frank is also a regular contributor to NBC's "TODAY Show" as well as a Chicago Sun Times columnist, author and life-style expert.

Fontana, a student of real world design, started his own event, home and commercial design company in South Florida in 2000 where he designed and created theme parties, interiors and nightclub decor throughout the country.

After a strategic relocation to Los Angeles, Fontana found himself producing and designing major events and creating cutting edge interiors for entertainment industry elite, Fortune 500 companies, as well as for Hollywood celebrities. He has produced events for Halle Berry, Dennis Quaid, Jeff Goldblum and many others.

Today, Frank lives and works in downtown Chicago where he films his HGTV shows and oversees his private design firm, Frank Fontana Designs. Frank's book Dirty Little Secrets of Design is currently in production and due out in 2010.
