Rob Peck

Travels from: Massachusetts

Fee Range: $2,500 - $5,000

Rob Peck is the founder of Zestworks, a speaking, training, and consulting firm whose core philosophy is to make content come alive by linking lessons with laughter. Rob graduated from the University of Pennsylvania (Phi Beta Kappa) and Ringling Brothers Clown College ("Magna Cum Looney"!). He received the International Juggler's Association's "Excellence in Education Award" and was a featured guest on Donahue.

Rob's guiding principle is that high spirits mean low attrition. His novel use of juggling (literally and figuratively) immediately strikes a universal chord that cuts across all age and gender barriers. In Peck's nimble hands juggling becomes both a metaphor for how to deal with lots of "balls" in the air -- and still stay focused... and a hands-on training tool that helps participants hone their concentration and heighten their sense of humor.

As a speaker, trainer, and consultant, Peck has helped thousands of multi-tasking professionals re-discover a life-balance which links learning with laughter and frees them to have less stress and more zest at work and at home.

From Harvard to Hewlett Packard, ZESTWORKS creatively customized programs have sparked the fresh thinking and fertile collaborations that help leaders and teams stay focused, stay flexible (and stay together) in a high trust, winning organization.
