Steve Bridges

Travels from: California

Fee Range: $20,001 - $40,000

Every American boy is told they might grow up to be President of the United States. Steve Bridges never doubted his father's words, but immediately started to mimic them. From a very early age, Bridges entertained his family and friends with uncanny, hilarious impressions of anyone within earshot.

When Steve's family eventually settled in California, he set to work honing his performance skills. As a young man, he obtained extensive acting and voice-over coaching in Los Angeles, even spending time with the notorious Groundlings improvisation troupe.

Bridges developed a repertoire of over 200 impressions, including TV characters Barney Fife and Homer Simpson, broadcasters Tom Brokaw, Paul Harvey and Rush Limbaugh; but it was his chilling embodiment of political leaders Bill Clinton and Al Gore that rapidly established him as a premiere vocal impressionist.

Applying "executive" skills and vision, Steve gathered a "creative cabinet" in 2002 that has changed the world of comedy. He engaged the Academy Award-winning prosthetic make-up artist Kevin Haney and Evan Davis' Headwriters comedy staff, creating a formula for the perfect President George W. Bush.

Today the Bridges team announces the long-awaited premiere of Steve as President Barack Obama, featuring the amazing talent of prosthetic makeup artist, Kazu Tsuji. Late-night comedians might struggle to find humor about our new president, but Steve easily mines brilliant, topical humor as he has over the last eight years.

The Bridges team is also proud to announce a new show - "The Global Economic Smackdown" - featuring Steve without make-up performing over forty vocal impressions of world leaders and show business personalities in a hilarious international town hall.

Whether he's in state-of-the-art prosthetic make-up or just performing sparkling, rapid-fire impressions, Steve Bridges evokes bipartisan laughs that entertain any crowd. Staying above the political fray, he elicits raves from both sides of the aisle. Steve's material is always refreshing, topical, and funny to both right and left.

Steve humbly admits that he could never be the real commander-in-chief, but when it comes to American political impressionists, Washington insiders and comedy pollsters have voted Steve Bridges to be undisputed "leader of the free world."
